Economic Injury Disaster Loans Advance Grants
The SBA is not accepting new applications at this time for the Economic Injury Disaster Loan–COVID 19 related assistance program, including EIDL Advances, based on available appropriations funding. Applicants that have already submitted an application will be processed on a first-come, first-served basis.

In addition to existing loans available under the SBA for Economic Injury Disaster Loans (EIDL), advance grants up to $10,000 can be made to provide immediate relief for small business operating costs for entities that apply for an Economic Injury Disaster Loan. Funds will be made within three days of a successful application.

Who’s eligible?
Small businesses under 500 employees (including a cooperative, Employee Stock Ownership Plan or a tribal small business), private nonprofit organizations, sole proprietorships (with or without employees), independent contractors, and small agricultural cooperatives.

When can I apply?
The SBA now has the Advance in place.

How to apply?
Applicants apply directly to the SBA. Interested borrowers can start the application process at the SBA’s website. The SBA notes that those who applied prior to the launch of this program on March 31st, 2020 will have to reapply through the streamlined application to be eligible for the advance. Those businesses should receive notification that is the case via email, phone, and mail to advise them of that requirement.

Where can I find more information?
- The SBA COVID-19 response website continues to be updated as more information becomes available. See Economic Injury Disaster Loans and Loan Advance.
- If a business wants to know the status of a loan, please call the Customer Service Center at 800.659.2955 to learn about your specific situation.

Please note: businesses CANNOT receive an economic disaster loan and a Paycheck Protection Program loan for the same purpose. If you take advantage of an emergency EIDL grant advance up to $10,000, that amount is subtracted from the amount forgiven up to the Paycheck Protection loan. Businesses can also refinance an EIDL into the Paycheck Protection loan for loan forgiveness purposes. Remaining portions of the EIDL, for purposes other than those laid out in loan forgiveness for a Paycheck Protection loan, remain a loan.

Aid to Midsize Businesses

The CARES Act requires a special program through the U.S. Treasury and Federal Reserve specifically targeted at midsize businesses and nonprofits between 500-10,000 employees to provide loans, loan guarantees, and other investments. These loans will not be forgiven. The Federal Reserve created the Main Street Lending Programs on April 9th to provide $600 billion to these entities. While program terms have been released by the Federal Reserve, the U.S. Treasury and Federal Reserve are still finalizing the program and more information will become available.

The U.S. Treasury and Federal Reserve have latitude to develop these programs, such as setting additional terms for eligible borrowers and required collateral. There are restrictions and criteria in place on businesses as enacted by the CARES Act.

Who is eligible?

Nonprofits and mid-sized businesses between 500 and 10,000 employees, or with revenues up to $2.5 billion, that are created or organized in the U.S. or under the laws of the U.S. with significant operations in and majority of its employees based in the U.S. Businesses must be in good financial standing.

How will this work?

The U.S. Treasury provided capital to the Federal Reserve to implement the Main Street Lending Programs that will provide financing to eligible lenders, which are U.S. insured depository institutions, U.S. bank holding companies and U.S. savings and loan holding companies. Eligible borrowers will apply through eligible lenders.

Known loan terms: The loans are 4-year loans and amortization of principal and interest is deferred for one year. The loans can be from $1 million to $150 million and are determined depending on the situation of each applicant. More information can be found in the term sheets linked in the More Information Section.

What are the known conditions?

Borrowers must commit from using the proceeds of these loans to repay other loan balances and must refrain from repaying other debt of equal or lower priority, with the exception of mandatory principal payments. Borrowers must also attest that financing is required due to COVID-19 and that the proceeds will reasonably allow borrowers to maintain payroll and retain employees during the term of the loan.

Borrowers must also meet the requirements set forth by the CARES Act: retaining at least 90% of current workforce until September 30, 2020, at full compensation and benefits; cannot engage in stock buybacks, unless contractually obligated, or pay dividends while the loan is outstanding; no outsourcing or offshoring for two years after completing repayment; and must remain neutral in any union organization effort and not breach a collective bargaining agreement for two years after repayment.

Where can I find more information?

The Federal Reserve issued the terms of the Main Street Lending Programs on April 9th and is continuing to finalize the program. Interested borrowers should reference the term sheets at the bottom of the page for specifics. Funding for loans to midsize businesses and nonprofits will be made available to banks and other lenders, as described above. Interested borrowers could also reach out to their bank for more information as it becomes available.
Aid to Larger Businesses

The U.S. Treasury and Federal Reserve announced the Federal Reserve will begin purchasing up to $750 billion in corporate loans and bonds from large businesses through its Primary and Secondary Market Corporate Credit Facilities.

Who is eligible?
Interested participants must be a U.S. business, organized under state or federal law, and have significant operations and a majority of their employees in the U.S. Interested participants must also have at least an investment grade rating on March 22nd.

How will this work?
Funding from the U.S. Treasury allows the Federal Reserve to create a program, called a facility, to make loans to investment grade corporations and buy corporate bonds to help companies function through the COVID-19 crisis. The Federal Reserve will finance a special purpose vehicle (SPV) to make loans and purchase bonds from these facilities to companies. The loans and bonds will have a maturity of up to 4 years. The program will cease on September 30, 2020, unless it is extended by the Federal Reserve.

What are the known conditions and restrictions?
Businesses must be created or organized in the U.S. or under the laws of the U.S. with significant operations in and majority of its employees based in the U.S. and an investment grade as of March 22, 2020. Additional criteria is explained in the term sheets from the Federal Reserve linked in the More Information Section.

Where can I get more information?
Interested entities should reference the term sheets listed at the bottom of the page for Term Asset-Backed Securities Loan Facility, Primary Market Corporate Credit Facility and Secondary Market Corporate Credit Facility. More guidance from the Federal Reserve should become available soon.
Aid to All Businesses

The CARES Act makes a series of changes to the tax code that may benefit your business.

Where can I get more information for the below tax credits?

Interested businesses should consult a tax expert or reference the IRS for updated guidance. The IRS website will be updated as more information becomes available. The below is meant to provide an overview of changes made.

Employee Retention Credit

The U.S. Treasury and IRS launched the Employee Retention Credit on March 31, 2020. Eligible entities can receive a refundable payroll tax credit for 50% of up to $10,000 in qualified wages for retaining idled workers on their payrolls during the COVID pandemic.

Qualified wages are based on the average number of a business's employees in 2019. If the employer had more than 100 employees on average in 2019, then the credit is allowed only for wages paid to employees who did not work during the calendar quarter. For eligible employers with under 100 employees, all employee wages qualify for the credit. The credit is capped at the first $10,000 of compensation, including health benefits. The provision is effective for wages paid or incurred from March 12, 2020 to January 1, 2021.

Who is eligible?

Employers regardless of size and tax-exempt organizations under 501(c) of the IRS, whose operations were fully or partially suspended due to a government shut-down order or gross receipts declined by more than 50% compared to the same quarter the previous year.

Small businesses who take a Paycheck Protection Program loan are not eligible for this tax credit.

How do I receive the credit?

See FAQ from the U.S. Treasury under “I am an eligible employer. How do I receive my credit?”

Interested businesses should continue to reference the IRS for updated guidance.

Delay Payment of Employer Payroll Taxes

All employers and self-employed individuals may defer the 6.2% employer share of Social Security taxes for two years. Fifty percent of the deferred payroll taxes are due on December 31, 2021, and the remaining amounts are due on December 31, 2022.

Additional Tax Changes

- Business Expense Deduction Changes: Business Expense Deduction Limits are increased from 30% to 50% for 2019 and 2020. Additional rules apply to partnerships.
- Retail Tax: Retailers, restaurateurs and hotels will be able to immediately deduct qualified property improvements and amend previous year filings.
- Relaxes Net Operating Loss Limits: Businesses will be allowed to carry net operating losses arising in the 2018, 2019, and 2020 tax years back five years. The taxable income limit is temporarily removed to allow a NOL to fully offset income for those years. Additional rules apply for life insurance companies.
